Sponsored by:

Industry and Regulators Summit

Members of the U.S. Coast Guard, Class, Managers, and Shipowners, will participate in a wide-ranging discussion of safety, policy, regulatory and environmental rules. The goal, a fuller understanding of the costs, risks and responsibilities that drive all sides in the pursuit of common safety goals and objectives.

Critical Issues:

Ensuring safety, quality and the enforcement of regulation in shipping – Is Plimsoll rolling over in his grave?

The latest MARPOL and National Pollutant Discharge Elimination System (NPDES) program – After three months how is it working? Are we introducing new rules and regulations the best ways possible?

Criminal Concerns: Balancing an owners desire to be on scene of an incident versus the threat of arrest; Detaining seafarers: Necessary? Cruel and Unusual? Balancing human rights with legal interests.

Ballast Water, Emissions, Piracy, Port Security – These and other issues pit interests against each other and beg the question “who is the 500 pound gorilla today?” What can a shipowner do?

Balancing the many costs of security against the threat of attack. Are port delays, vessel inspections and security regulations drowning trade?
